

Perek* did not have a stable childhood. He experienced emotional abuse and neglect at a very young age. The most stability he had was when he was with his elderly grandmother. Eventually she became his sole caretaker, but by then he was experiencing the after-effects of a childhood filled with trauma. He had low self-esteem and was socially immature for his age. He felt as if he did not really fit in anywhere.

Eventually those feelings overwhelmed Derek and he began to use drugs and alcohol. He grew to despise authority figures and a defiant behavior pattern immerged. Soon he began hanging out with the wrong crowd in his neighborhood. His new "friends" seemed like the perfect fit for him, giving him purpose and sense of security. However, things spiraled out of control. Soon he found himself in trouble with the law and in the custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ).

Derek entered a program with DJJ where he was given the tools to stop the downward spiral and find a way to start putting things on the right track. He did everything that was asked of him and he completed the program with a new outlook on life.

Unfortunately at the same time, his grandmother's health declined to a point where she could no longer take care of him. Without another place to go upon discharge from DJJ, Derek was placed

Moving Ferward Spring 2017 A Message from The Rev. John Holler

President

The most recent national Kids Count Data Book (2016) provides an analysis of five basic conditions that describe many of our children in South Carolina. This annual publication provides an analysis of economic, educational, health, family, and general well-being of children in our state.

For over two decades South Carolina's children have ranked in the lowest tier in the nation in most indicators for quality of life. This distressing portrait is further tainted by the increasing numbers of children who suffer from abuse or neglect.

Economic conditions of children in S.C. ranked 37th, which is one state shy of the lowest tier nationally. Children's Health ranked 37th which is also one state shy of the lowest tier. Children who live in nurturing families and are part of Supportive Communities ranked 42nd. That ranking is in the lowest tier. Our Educational rating dropped from 41st to 43rd which kept S.C. in the lowest tier. Overall Child Well-being ranks 41st which places our children in the lowest tier nationally.

As you can see we have a long way to go to reach a point where we can be proud of the work we do in South Carolina to help many of our young children have a fighting chance to overcome the poor start they have experienced. Additional resources, research, dedication, and a sharper focus need to be brought to the table.

Epworth is answering the call of underserved children by continuing to raise the standard for child services both on and off of our campuses. Epworth has started a foster parent recruiting and support program. The goal is to recruit, train, and support foster parents who will provide a loving, stable, faith related home for children who need a family. The recruiting efforts are focused mainly on church congregations that can provide a nurturing environment to foster families.

Epworth also plans to enlarge its innovative Family Care Center and move it to its new campus. This program which was designed by Epworth staff members, and community partners allows mothers and their children to live together on Epworth's campus in a home like environment. In this program mothers and children are able to continue living together while they receive the support and structured assistance that they need to move them toward healthy family functioning.

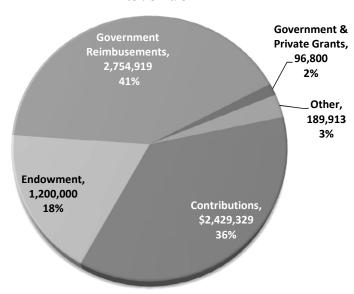

Also, in the next couple of months, Epworth's highly successful Higher Education and Independent Living program for youth 18 to 23 will become the Center for Independent Living and will move to the new Trenholm Road campus and expand its capacity. This program, under the direction of Laurie Brandes, prepares Epworth residents for life beyond Epworth with college scholarships, job training, life skills classes and experiences, supervision, guidance, and a safe living environment.

We in South Carolina do have miles to go before we can brag about the way we care for our most vulnerable children, but Epworth and partner institutions across our state are moving forward one step at a time. I thank you for your support as we walk together.

2016 Volunteer Totals

A volunteer unit is an individual or group approved to serve in some capacity on campus.

Total Volunteers on campus 2,451 Total Number of Volunteer Groups 92 Estimated Volunteer Hours Served 17,212 Estimated Value of Volunteers $297,210.00 into the custody of the Department of Social Services. His case worker reached out to Epworth to see if he would be a good fit.

After getting to know Derek and reading glowing recommendations from DJJ, the solicitor's office, DSS and his counselors, he was admitted to live in a cottage at Epworth. Derek viewed Epworth as a welcomed opportunity to continue to grow and redirect his life. He quickly adapted to the cottage environment and bonded with the staff who worked with him. He befriended the other boys and quickly became a positive influence in the cottage.

Derek enrolled in school. His troubled past meant that his grades had not always been perfect but Epworth worked with the local school district to get him enrolled in a program where he could complete his high school studies and begin to establish work history at the same time. Through the program he began working in the school dining operations.

A few days later, he decided to take a few extra steps. He drafted a resume on the computer and printed it off and walked over to the Epworth dining hall one afternoon. He explained that he was getting experienced in the food service industry and he wanted a job at the dining hall. There was not an immediate opening in the dining hall but Epworth agreed to help him in his pursuit, including connecting him with other job resources, once he became more established in his school and study habits.

A few days after that, a volunteer group came to Epworth to talk with the teenage boys. The group is a social club that consists of men from all walks of life, from doctors to teachers. On this day, however, the program leader was a member who was a deputy in the Richland County Sherriff's Department.

For Derek, like many of the boys in the cottages, his interaction with law enforcement had not always been a positive experience and he struggled to relate to police officers. However, on this day, he found common ground because the officer speaking to them had one day been in his shoes. The officer also grew up in a children's home.

For the next few hours, the boys and officer played role playing games, enjoyed time together and just got to know each other on a personal level. Soon the afternoon was over, but the impact of the activity was ongoing. Derek stopped one of his cottage staff and mentioned that he had a much different perspective of the police after the event. He even said that he might want to be a police officer one day.

Derek's growth at Epworth continues today. He is walks with confidence around campus and he is excelling in all that is expected of him in the cottage, at school and at work. He has turned his life around, and Epworth is committed to helping him stay on the right track and achieve his successes.

As he finishes his high school studies and work programs he will stay in the cottage, but he is already talking about joining Epworth's Independent Living Program when he has finished high school. There he will have more freedom than life in the cottage, which of course comes with a few more responsibilities. He will be able to explore his options post-high school, whether that is higher education, job training school, or career readiness. Along the way Epworth will provide a safe and stable place to live as well as a support system that teaches life skills and lessons needed for independence.

Derek's young life has not been an easy one, and like all young people he has many hurdles still in front of him. Yet through his growing moments, Epworth is providing him a space where he not only can turn his life around but also place him on the right track to set him up for a lifetime of success.

Follow-up: Family Reunified!

In the last issue of The Record, reader's learned about a family in the Epworth Family Care Center. Bria and her two young children came to Epworth at the end of the summer as Bria tried to overcome her on-going battles with addiction. At the end of January, Bria graduated from the program after completing all of her addiction treatments and assuming full parental responsibility for her children. The family is now officially reunified and living independently!

Bria and her children have moved back to the low-country to be near family who can provide a helping hand in raising the children. She calls to check-in with her "Epworth family" from time to time as she begins a new chapter in her life. Everyone is doing well and staying on the right track to be a happy and healthy family.

News from the Family Care Center: Just days after Bria's graduation, a new mother was admitted into the program and it is currently at capacity with four mothers and ten children, most of which are under the age of four!

The mission of Epworth Children's Home is to serve children, youth and families through a caring, accepting and safe Christian community, where hurts are healed; hope is nurtured; and faith in God, self and others is developed.

We would like to thank the Epworth Alumni Association for another successful Cookout for Kids BBQ. The 9th annual Cookout for Kids BBQ was held on April 8, 2017 on Epworth's campus. The BBQ fundraiser is hosted by adults who spent some or all of their childhoods at Epworth. 100% of proceeds from the fundraiser are donated directly to Epworth.

Thank You, Friends of Epworth!

A special thanks to the Friends of Epworth who hosted their annual Gala on March 17, 2017. The Friends of Epworth are local community leaders who formed in 2012 to enrich the lives of children by raising undesignated funds through businesses and communities partners. The event was a great fundraiser and "friend-raiser" for the children at Epworth. Thank you for all that you do for the children at Epworth!
